

SUMMARY SOCIAL HOUSING ASSESSMENT 2024

FREQUENTLY ASKED QUESTIONS

What is the Summary Social Housing Assessment?

The Summary Social Housing Assessment (SSHA) is a review of applicants who are currently on Cork City Council's social housing waiting list to confirm that they are still seeking social housing support and to obtain updated information on the household's current circumstances. The information provided by applicants will be reassessed under the Social Housing Assessment Regulations 2011, as amended, taking into account eligibility and need.

Why is Cork City Council doing this assessment?

All local authorities in the country are required by the Department of Housing, Local Government and Heritage to reassess applicants on their waiting lists, to collect up-to-date and accurate information on their social housing needs.

The 2024 SSHA continues the process of annual assessments which has been ongoing for the last number of years. These summaries are required to identify the total level of national housing need, and to provide vital data to inform the development of housing policy. The key output of the summary is the net need figure. This is the number of qualified households on each local authority housing list across the country whose social housing need is not being met. The Department of Housing, Local Government and Heritage will use this information to plan for the right types of housing support needed across the country.

When is the assessment being done?

The process has already started. Cork City Council must count all qualified households on the housing list on 4th November 2024. To make sure all applications are processed in time, households who are in need of review must ensure that completed forms and documentation are returned before 13th September 2023.

Who is being reassessed?

The assessment this year will focus on applicants who have not applied for the first time, or been reviewed, since 5th July 2023. The applicants who need to be reviewed have been sent a letter and form in the post. The following households will not need to be assessed this year:

- Households who qualified for support for the first time since 5th July 2023.
- Households who were reassessed as part of the 2023 Summary Social Housing Assessment.
- Households who are currently housed under the Housing Assistance Payment (HAP) scheme.
- Households who are currently housed under the Rental Accommodation Scheme (RAS).
- Households who have applied for a transfer from an existing form of social housing Support, e.g., an existing tenant of a Cork City Council or an Approved Housing Body property.

How will Cork City Council contact applicants who need to be reassessed?

On 19th August 2024, Cork City Council issued a letter and application form to the applicants on the social housing list who need to be reassessed, using the current address provided by these applicants. The letter explains what information is needed and the date by which they are required to complete their return.
